The President Writes...

Welcome to our new look Feltlines. I hope like me you love the look and feel of the new design. This clean contemporary design helps position us as a more modern association connecting to our current membership base and attractive to new members.

I will leave Sarah to tell you more in her editorial column but would like to take the opportunity to thank Sarah for the time she has taken to pull this together and her ongoing commitment as Editor.

I also wish to thank all those who have taken on regular columns or features for Feltlines. For the first time in many issues, we have book reviews. There are interviews with both our very popular guest tutor, Vilte Kazlauskaitė and with prolific feltmaker, and VFI member, Margaret Wilmot. My thanks to Judith Latham and Maggie Hollins who have taken on regular roles. Margot Ling writes about the Felting Frenzies and there are opportunities to exhibit and to view exhibitions. Penny Storey was the photographer for Show and Tell and many workshop images.

It takes many hours of voluntary commitment of our members to keep even a small association like ours running smoothly. Everyone is worthy of an award but in particular I was honoured to present Narelle Higgins our Encouragement Award at our 100th meeting. Narelle has selflessly put the VFI first before her own family commitments and this has been recognised. Narelle has stepped down as Workshop Co-ordinator and Sandy Buchanan along with the support of Ros Bint has taken up the mantle.

At our 100th meeting we were lucky to have Sue Pearl from the UK demonstrate her "Frillies" scarves. Sue kindly donated her scarf which we will auction off for charity at an upcoming meeting. Our next meeting in April will be our "Mad Hatters Tea Party" and we are encouraging everyone to wear a hat and there will be a prize for the best hat.

Many of you ask about mentoring and we believe the Felting Frenzies are a great way to learn and ask other keen felters about your work, any issues you are having and general help on techniques.

With Camp Jungai happening in May this will be another fabulous way to learn and immerse yourself in felting with many other women who can help out. So I can only encourage you to participate in what will be a fabulous weekend. All the details are in this edition and will also be on our website.

The retreat at Camp Jungai also allows many of our regional members, who can't come to our meetings, the opportunity to connect in with our membership of like minded felters. If you are a little daunted about coming on your own we are very happy for you to bring a buddy and they don't have to be a felter but can just enjoy the surroundings. So please make the effort: we can accommodate 100 plus participants.

I will leave you with this thought: "you can't hide your true colours as your approach the Autumn of your life."

Margaret Wilmot

The first in an on-going series of interviews with VFI members about their lives and work by Maggie Hollins

You don't live in Victoria, do you?

I am a textile and fibre artist based in Corowa in southern NSW and have been exploring the possibilities of wool combined with other fibres for over thirty years.

What sort of an education did you have?

I graduated with a Diploma of Education majoring in Sculpture and Jewellery but on being sent to teach in Rutherglen and then crossing the Murray to marry and live in Corowa, I discovered the joys of working with wool. I completed a Certificate of Hand Weaving and a Certificate of Textile Colour and Design. I then embarked on a wonderful creative journey into woven wall hangings and textile sculptures using natural coloured wools to reflect the colours and textures of my life on the Murray River. My works were exhibited in galleries over the North East and in Melbourne and I was invited to participate in an exhibition of Australian Weavers in Wool at Wool house in Parkville.

TOP Poncho, modelled by Margaret herself. Merino wool & silk fibre on raw silk fabric.

but the old felting techniques were rather messy, smelly and dirty

How did you get into feltmaking?

I had experimented with felting during the woven wallhanging period, using it to create 3D effects for my work, but the old felting techniques were rather messy, smelly and dirty. We would lay out raw fleece onto a cotton sheet, fold the sheet over and tack in place to make a flat mattress, then pour on boiling water and detergent, roll it up between wooden rods and belt the poor sodden smelly mass about on the concrete. It always had to be done outside and established the reputation that felting was messy and wet.

How does your work fit in with family life?

My husband, who was the local pharmacist, always supported me with my art but with two little girls my textile activities turned to ballet costumes, party dresses and soft toys. Then, particularly with the introduction of GST, I had to spend more time in running our family business and my creative output suffered. I did however continue to share my love of wool and textiles and taught art and craft particularly through Adult Education and TAFE classes and was very involved in our local Spinners & Weavers Group.

On selling our business nine years ago I was right back into my love of textiles and fibres and embarked on a fun journey of re-education and exploring of new techniques. I discovered "Modern" felting with colour and "Bubble Wrap" Yay!!! I was off and running.

What have you explored in feltmaking?

I experimented with different fibres combined with merino wool, silk, flax, mohair, and alpaca. I tried nuno with a variety of fabrics, silks, polyesters, metallics and knits. I explored commercial and natural dyeing, all the while trying to create shawls, wraps and garments that were light and would drape well. My work was again selling well through regional galleries and outlets.

In 2007, I attended the Victorian Feltmakers Convergence at Beechworth and was again blown away with excitement of the possibilities of felting. I love learning and teaching and have been very fortunate to attend many of the wonderful workshops run through the Victorian Feltmakers. The most recent was with Liz Clay and I have been inspired to return to the colours and textures of the trees along my beloved Murray River.

Ever had a dream come true?

Many artists and craftspeople have the dream of running their own gallery. In 2008, I was part of a group of artists in our town who formed a Co-operative to open and run a gallery to exhibit and sell our work, run exhibitions, and conduct workshops. It has been a learning curve to get it established but a very exciting and worth while venture. Through our Gallery 294 I have been able to work for and hold three solo exhibitions.

How else do you share your work?

Towards the end of 2011, I was very involved with a doll maker friend, in making all of the felting for the creation of the Three Magi for the Johnston House Museum, East Melbourne, Christmas Collection. This was a huge many artists and craftspeople have the dream of running their own gallery installation and required every technique that I had ever learnt: dyeing, laminating, Shibori, gossamer, inlay; as the colours and decorations had to reflect antiques in the museum.

What do you do when you are not felting?

The not so creative side of me loves travel and bike riding and we are off in February to travel to Burma for a cycling tour. I will, of course, manage to visit weaving areas and as usual, bring home metres of wonderful silks and hand made traditional textiles.

What does the immediate future hold?

I am looking forward to attending the Vilde Kazlauskaitė class in March at Feltmakers. I am very grateful to the organisers of the wonderful workshops as they give me an opportunity to renew friendships and work with like minded people. My advice to all Feltmakers is to keep learning and keep felting, it is so rewarding.

A word from the editor

Welcome to the new-look Feltlines. Ever since I began to look after the magazine - and possibly prompted by the desire to be able to call it so legitimately - I have wanted Feltlines to have a cleaner, crisper, more designed layout, reflecting the sophistication that felt can have. This is the result.

Please feel free to make comments about the format. I will be happy to incorporate what I can. The new layout has taken a lot of work, but I do regard it as a first draft. Over the next few issues the design can be tweaked and perfected.

An objection I can foresee is printing out the full colour cover. It is charcoal, front and back, in this issue. I intend to match it to each cover photograph. An easy fix is a downloadable printer-friendly version, with a white background and dark text. You will find this ready for you on the website.

The magazine will now be quarterly, as you should be aware. The next season is a favourite for those who wear felt - winter. Feel free to send me images you have taken which capture the feeling. I would also like member responses to the season - in felt, but it could be poetry or drawing - however you choose to respond. Quotations would also be great.

In line with the more contemporary feel, the VFI has also started a Facebook page, which will be great for taking our activities to a wider audience. A request to use Facebook has been sent to all email addresses in our database. You can use the address www.facebook.com/vicfelt to go straight to the page. Then click the "Like" icon, giving us the thumbs up. You will then get news from us on your Facebook page.

If you are not a member (or are not logged into Facebook), you will be presented with a request to join. If you have concerns about the security of Facebook, change the security settings after you join. Allow friends only to see your details for maximum security and ask Facebook to use a secure server for your page. If you look at the address for your page it should then start with https:, more secure than the usual http:.

Facebook will keep you up-to-date automatically, with less effort on our part. We should all like that.

You may have noticed that there is no information regarding FELTernative in this issue. Entry forms and the requirements will be put on the website, so that they are easily available. A copy will also be sent out with the postal version of the magazine. If you have any queries, please contact Jan Everett (see page 15 for email and phone details).

Finally, we have a new post box address. From April 1, it will be:

PO Box 852, Camberwell South, Vic. 3124.

Enjoy!

Vilte Kazlauskaitė

Soon to warm us up for Autumn with her extraordinary clothes, our very special guest tutor talks to Sharon Carter

Tell me about your background. How did you arrive at felting?

I started due to a simple fascination about the properties of fibers to create new continuous fabrics. Since my mind wasn't constrained with what felt must be and the rules around making it, I began experimenting.

and most sincere inner conversations that matter for me most and maybe not for someone else.

What does a typical day in your studio look like?

I am still waiting for a place to be called my studio, for now I am sharing the space of some rooms we live in. I am not that kind of felter who felts

Feel Felt, Felt Feeling

Something about felting, Something about felt

I had been a dancer for 10 years in my life and I quit dancing as I started my psychology studies. My hands now make the wool and other fibres dance, move, entangle, and interlock. I should say that all of my life experience step by step led me into the world of felt.

How would you describe your signature style to someone who has not seen your work?

My pieces are always very organic, they have movement encoded in them, they are never static. It's a mixture of softness, lightness, transparency and wildness, roughness. My pieces encode sensuality, poetics, as well as little drama elements. They do communicate, arise feelings, have some seduction in them. My colour language is delicate, you would hardly find a big number of different colours together in my pieces. I am a huge fan of all natural things, so besides using natural fibres, I prefer to dye my fibres with natural dyes – plant materials.

What are your favourite pieces?

The pieces that become more dearer to me probably have more rawness of my soul, purer feelings every day and does certain amount of work each day. There are days when I don't even touch the wool. There are days when I do nothing but felt without seeing anything around. But I do explore felting in my mind each day, I dream, I imagine, I create. This "thinking" process is of big importance to me, the same as the process of getting down to the wool and working with my two hands.

I am happy in doing everything by myself – from dreaming, designing, discovering new materials, preparing my own fibres by washing, carding or dyeing, felting, to taking photos of my work, packing and shipping my pieces to clients and using Internet for making my personal, more intimate shows...

Where do you go for your inspiration?

List 3 or more books, websites, blogs that inspire you.

There is plenty of inspiration inside yourself as well as outside – in the nature, in the world that surrounds you. I find beauty in other kinds of textile, fashion, photography, architecture, design elements, and other kinds of artistic expressions.

I mention a blog and tumblr site curated by a fibre artist Abigail Doan - www.eccoeco.blogspot.com and www.lostinfiber.tumblr.com - where I do like to wander and soak up some inspiration.

Are there other felters or creative people that you admire?

I always mention Claudy Jongstra whose feeling of felt is so close to mine.

Do you have any other creative interests?

One of my biggest interests besides felting is photography. I am also interested in dance art, fashion, interior and landscape design, as well as literature...

Have you had a mentor?

set me free from my own self, my own boundaries.

Where do you buy your supplies?

I have several sources for different materials – some come from commercial traders, some are sourced directly – wool from shepherds who love and care for their sheep, fleeces of alpacas who are also kept as pets and loved by their owners, or exotic kind of silk from the village in India where it is first collected.

What business skills have you acquired to run your business? What would you still like to learn?

What is most important in business everything so fast and easy and the world – so small, but on the other hand it took away so much pleasure of direct communication, even in business. And when people can see and touch the fabric you are making, there's a much bigger chance for more opportunities coming your way. So I would like to learn how to get a bit more of real face to face business into what I am doing now.

Any advice or words of encouragement for VFI members who do it as a hobby or as a business?

I always encourage people to travel their own journeys in finding their own signature in what they create. Be brave to experiment, be brave to be different, be brave to look silly sometimes, let yourself forget the technical rules from time to time and try to see what you do with a beginner's eyes, because the beginners usually have that big hunger for exploring, experimenting and thinking everything is possible. Refine everything you do to what is really YOU.

I always encourage people to travel their own journeys in finding their own signature in what they create

For first 4 or 5 years I experimented on my own. During this time I formed my style and signature, I matured as a felter. Then I took a workshop with Claudy Jongstra who helped a lot in developing my artistic expression and in a way she is believing and loving the things you do and having courage to present your pieces to others in your own style as only this way you will be noticed. All of my business is now made on line so I have acquired good internet communication. The Internet has made

A SYMPHONY IN FIBRE

This exciting exhibition is to be held at the Central Goldfields Art Gallery, Old Fire Station, Neill Street, Maryborough, Victoria, from 2nd June – 8th July. Gallery hours are Thursday to Sunday, from 10.00am – 4.00pm.

Three friends (and Victorian Feltmakers members) - Anna Ashton, Alison Durham & Pam Hovel - have banded together to present A Symphony In Fibre.

Each artist has a unique style and together they create a delightful mix of textural and organic forms and sumptuous garments in felt and fabric.

Created with artistic passion, each piece is a delight to the senses and guaranteed to thrill.

Felting Girls Just Wanna Have Fun

Felting Frenzy News & a Happy New Year's story by Margot Ling

Having a January Felting Frenzy certainly proved popular. Most of us had been too busy with Christmas and New Year festivities to get our hands into felt making.

The thirteen gals who attended were all very eager and productive. At times the silence was deafening and the air heavy with concentration, and at other times news and stories were being shared along with the happy sounds of laughter. Felting assistance was offered when requested, from all the mentors present

There were seventeen ladies showing interest in the day and as always 'things' crop up in our lives at the last minute and Felt Frenzy has to be put on the back burner.

February's Frenzy was held at Open-drawer on Toorak Road, Hartwell, run by Robyn Steel-Stickland and Prue Barridge. This was a one off location change, as Sue Pearl's workshop was taking place at our normal location. Purchases for fibre on that day were available at Open-drawer, meaning there was minimum disruption, which is good.

I appreciate the calls letting me know that your circumstances have changed, and that you are unable to attend, albeit at the last minute. I know the 'ladies in waiting' are always grateful for their place in the group.

When I can fill your spot at the last minute I am happy to transfer you to another day.

Our next Felting Frenzy is Saturday, March 24,, at the Hall as usual. If you need to book, contact me by email on margot@myaccess.com.au. VFI

Weekend Felting Frenzy at Camp Jungai

Many of us find it hard to get to a Friday or Saturday Frenzy. This is your chance to experience two full days of felting magic!

Camp Jungai nestles in the picturesque Rubicon Valley, just before the climb into the mountains. The area is brimming with bird life. The nearest towns are Taggerty and Alexandra. Camp Jungai is just under 2 hours' drive from Hartwell - without speeding

The weekend will be centred on felting in a relaxed atmosphere. There is plenty of room to work, comfy places to sit and chat, or go outdoors for walks, sketching and enjoying nature. Rosellas, King parrots, wrens, waterbirds, wombats and kangaroos abound on the property.

It is also possible to explore many indigenous cultural and art activities. Evenings can be social and entertaining or you can just keep felting – maybe both! Registration is open to members, who may invite a guest to accompany them.

TIME/DATE from 2 pm, Friday May 18, to 2pm, Sunday, May 20, 2012

VENUE The Jungai Centre, 475 Rubicon Road, Thornton, Victoria.

What's On

Calls for entry and opportunities abound this Autumn

We have been overwhelmed with opportunities for feltmakers this month. Most are quite complex and probably require you to download material from a website. In no particular order, they are:

2012 Scarf Festival: The Journey

The theme this year is "The Journey," scarves as maps and records of adventures. Registration kits are now available to download online from the website - www.nwm.vic.gov.au - or you can telephone the Wool Museum to have one mailed to you (03 5272 4701).

Key Dates:

- Entries opened February 27
- Entries close Friday, May 4

The City of Hobart Art Prize 2012

The categories this time are Fibre or Paint as the primary medium of submitted works. There are two acquisitive prizes of $15000 each and one $1000 People's Choice Award.

Entry forms are available online: www.hobartcity.com.au/artprize and entries close on May 1, 2012.

Expressions 2012: The Wool Quilt Prize

This is a great opportunity for anyone who works with wool, including those who make felt. Some stitch will be involved as well. See the website for forms and conditions: www.nwm.vic.gov.au.

Key Dates:

- Entries due September 28
- Notification of acceptance October 26

Susan Fell McLean is looking for feltmakers and natural dyers to exhibit work in Asia.

She has been invited by the convenor, Edric Ong, to bring an Australian contingent. She is proposing a Collective Fashion Designer Show and the Australia Naturally 2012 exhibition, featuring lengths of cloth as well 30 cm square box pieces. The emphasis is on natural dyeing, which should appeal to many VFI members. The organizers are interested in felt and different types of textile construction. However, she also says "Keep in mind that both ISEND and WEFT are about natural fibres and natural dyes, and our network is centred on shibori, but may include a range of processes and techniques if it fits the integrity of ISEND /WEFT."

There is a lot more information in her message. If you would like it forwarded to you, just email vfi@internode.on.net or contact Susan herself: susan.fellmclean@gmail.com.

Market stalls at the Persian Fair 2012, Abbotsford Convent

Iranian Society of Victoria/House of Persia is responsible for managing the Persian Fair which will be held at the Rosina function space on 22 April 2012, Abbotsford Convent.

- Table size is 180x75cm, and has to be covered with white table cloths.
- All tables need to be set up before 9am on the day.
- Vendors are responsible to keep the space presentable and clean during the festival and remove all rubbish before their departure.

There is an opportunity to hire table packs for $30, consisting of 1 table, table cloth and chair. If you wish to hire a table pack, you need to add the hiring cost to

Show & Tell

Proud pictures of work from workshops, shows and meetings

These works come from many of the areas in which VFI members participate. Jane Robson is our Membership Secretary and also teaches her beautiful fleece painting techniques, for which she has won much acclaim.

Jo Bagge was commended for her wrap at the Royal Agricultural Show last year, but unfortunately the editor did not know about her success when Feltlines went to press in December. Many apologies for the oversight.

Jo forwarded images of the work (seen below). Please let the editor know of any success, so that we can celebrate it with all our members. And do send images!

Our other photographs are from Show and Tell at meetings and from workshops. Thank you for submitting them.
